

Training Hub Task: Inventory

The Urban Training Collaborative is a global training collaborative that equips the head, heart, and hands of urban leaders, churches and organizations who seek the social and spiritual renewal of cities.

Hub Task (choose one):

Gather Leaders: UTC Hubs gather leaders from all sectors of the city (external) and gathers leaders of host organization (internal)

Lacking

We do not have a strategy in place to gather leaders externally or internally.

Basic

We are developing a strategy to gather leaders and have begun to put it into practice.

Moderate

We have a clear strategy in place to gather leaders with tangible results.

High

We have an effective strategy with significant impact (externally and internally) to gather leaders. We can adapt to unfolding needs and circumstances.

(choose one):

Train Leaders: UTC Hubs train the head (theological reflection), heart (spiritual formation), and hands (social action) of urban leaders.

Lacking

We do not have a training strategy that provides training for head, heart, and hands.

Basic

We are developing a strategy for training head, heart, and hands.

Moderate

We currently offer a well- balanced sustainable training strategy based on the UTC curriculum.

High

All of our training equips the head, heart, and hands of urban leaders and features training on approaches to city transformation such as LF's 3 Functions and CRWM's Transformational Networking. All of our training is informed by the Incarnational Training Model.

(choose one):

Cross-Train: UTC Hubs interact with a global network of hubs for cross-training, informing, and sharing best practices.

Lacking

We do not currently engage the UTC network.

Basic

We engage the UTC network at a basic level, participating in the monthly hub calls.

Moderate

We engage fellow hubs consistently, both informally and formally.

High

We are fully engaged in the UTC network, participating in the receiving, sharing, and shaping of training as well as visiting other hubs.
